ST. J. WHITEWASHED BY GOULD, 40-0

The Academy gridsters had an easy time last Saturday as they romped to a 40-0 victory over St. Johnsbury Academy. The Vermonters kicked-off to Ireland who carried to the 29 yard line. On just 10 plays the winners marched 71 yds to score, with Davis going over from the 2 yard line. This march included a 27 yard run by Ireland and a 10 yard plunge by Hall which helped to set-up the first TD. The try for point was missed. A few minutes later Charlie Smith intercepted a St. J pass and scampered 25 yards to the opponents 18 yard line. Hall hit the line for 2 yards; Ireland got 5 more and then Davis went the remaining 11 for the second score. The point after was good and the first period score remained 13-0.

In the second period both teams made two first downs but one of Gould's was a 34 yard sprint by Davis that put the ball on the 17 yard line. Hall promptly hit the line, broke into the open and ran into the end zone to score. The place kick missed and Gould led 19-0 at the half ended.

The "Blue and Gold" scored twice again in the third period, the first by Davis from the 16 yard line and the second by Ireland from the 15. A recovered fumbled punt by St. J set up the first score while Davis' pass interception paved the way for the other.

The final period saw an avalanche of substitutions; but the Maine team managed another touchdown as Hall ran 11 yards into pay territory. Davis made good on all three second half "points after" and Gould led 40-0. The entire Gould team played fine ball, with Hamilton, Bonnett, and Hall showing great defensive strength. Davis carried the ball 13 times for a total of 121 yards, while Ireland made 37 yards in 7 tries, and Hall covered 58 yards in 9 attempts.

The Bethel team gained 9 first downs to 5 for St. J. Dumas was the best ground gainer for the losers. He got away for 13 yards and 10 yards in the first period but found himself pretty well hemmed in by a hard charging Gould line after that.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT PROMISES NO DROP IN NEXT FIVE YEARS

The Bethel School Survey Committee held its second meeting Tuesday evening. The figures obtained from census made during the summer for the purpose of determining the approximate number of children who would be entering Bethel schools within the next five years were viewed and discussed. Although the census was fairly complete at the time it has since been found that several were "missed" and figures which are given here would now be higher for some years. There has also been no accurate way of checking the births since July in order to get a more correct figure for the number eligible to enter in 1953.

The Committee feels that the public would be interested in these figures along with present enrollment and list of tuition pupils by years.

GOULD MEETS LIVERMORE FALLS IN PARENTS' DAY GAME

This week end is Parents' Day at Gould Academy, where Mothers and Dads will be entertained with teas, picnics, parties, and the main feature, the Gould-Livermore Falls football game. Last year Livermore put up a great battle against the Academy eleven but were finally beaten. Coach Scott's charges this year have come along fast and are top-heavy favorites to win. The Bethel team has yet to be scored on as they have beaten Lyndon Institute 13-0, Mexico 34-0, and St. Johnsbury, Vt. 40-0. The Gould lines have proven strong defensively and the triumvirate of Davis, Ireland, and Hall has been hard to stop. The game is scheduled to start at 2:00 p. m. on Alumni Field. Special attractions are due between the halves.

PEASANT VALLEY GRANGE
Pleasant Valley Grange members are making plans for a Grange Fair to be held at the Grange Hall Friday evening Oct. 22, at 7:30. There will be exhibits of vegetables, fancy work and hobbies. Ribbons will be awarded.

Articles on sale will include fancy work, aprons, novelties and candies. There will also be bean, grape, for the children, and refreshments on sale. All interested in exhibiting please bring exhibits to the hall between 2 and 4 in the afternoon, if possible.

NOTICE
Any one who did not receive Maine Public Health Christmas Seals last year and would like to receive them this year please notify Mrs. Paul Thurston as soon as possible.

BETHEL PLAYERS TO MEET MONDAY EVENING

IRELAND DISCUSSES ACADEMY PROBLEMS

Speaking before the members of the Lions Club Monday evening, Headmaster Elwood F. Ireland of Gould Academy, made statements regarding Academy affairs which have since been a common topic of discussion. The following statement was given the Citizen by Mr. Ireland and is compiled from notes used in his talk.

In order to acquaint the citizens of Bethel more fully with the facts upon which the Trustees and Headmaster of Gould base some of their decisions and policies, the Headmaster has been instructed to bring to your attention information which hitherto has been a matter of public record, but nevertheless somewhat obscured by the formality of state educational records.

The present rates are:
Boarding students $1,100
Day students 150
(limited by law)

The actual cost based upon figures furnished to the State Department of Education and calculated by that department is $446.88. This does not include the cost of the boarding department, or operation of either dormitory, but does include the cost of day student instruction and the other privileges they enjoy.

Therefore, on each of slightly over 150 day students, the cost to the school is nearly three times what the school receives from the town. To be exact, the school expends $200.08 more on each child than it collects.

166 (day pupils) x $200.08 =

The reasons for this cost per pupil are due to several factors.

First: Gould maintains four departments to better meet the needs of the majority of day students; namely, Home Economics, Manual Arts, Commercial, and College Preparatory. Each of the first three departments is more expensive than the College Preparatory department because of costly equipment, low pupil-teacher ratio, need for special rooms, and high operating and maintenance costs.

Second: Gould provides completely modern medical and physical education programs for both boys and girls. The equivalent of such buildings, equipment, and teachers is not found in the usual Maine high schools.

A. In our physical education program we have excellent coaches who place emphasis on the physical fitness and training of the students rather than on the results of the game. The equipment used is of the best.

B. Complete medical and dental examinations are given to all students each year as well as to the members of the school staff. This includes blood, urine, eye, nose, throat, and ear tests. Each student is also given a chest x-ray. Recommendations for corrections are also made at the time of the examination.

C. All boys and girls of the seventh and eighth grades are also given (without charge to the town) the use of the Field House and Bingham Gym one period every week. Continued on Page Five

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD BRYANT

BRYANT - WILSON

Announcement is being made of the marriage on October 10 of Miss Barbara Leona Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wilson of Bethel, and Richard Norris Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Bryant of Bethel.

Rev Kingsley W. Hawthorne officiated at the double ring service at the Congregational Church.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Elwood Ireland, and vocal solos, "Because" and "I Love You Dear," were rendered by Miss Priscilla Goggins.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was gowned in white satin trimmed with lace and wore a finger-tip veil. She carried a bridal bouquet.

Mr. Carey York, sister of the bride was the matron of honor, wearing a gown of green satin. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations.

The bridesmaids were Miss Carolyn Bryant, sister of the groom, and Miss Kathryn Wilson, sister of the bride. They wore gowns of fuchsia satin and carried colonial bouquets. Little Sharon Anne York, niece of the bride, was bride's bearer. She wore a blue taffeta gown.

Stanley Davis of Bethel served as best man. Ushers were: Robert Greenleaf, Glendon McAllister, Gilbert LeClair, and Keith Wilson.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Garland Chapel. Refreshments were served including a wedding cake made by Mrs. Jessie Watson of Rumford. Serving were: Miss Kathryn Kellogg, Mrs. Robert Davis, and Mrs. Homer Tibbets, of Bethel, and Miss Nita Cormier of Rumford. Mrs. Lawrence Sanders had charge of the gifts, and Miss Carol Robertson, the guest book.

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS BUT NOBODY CARES

Do the people of Bethel realize what a state the community is in? No— Are they interested? No— like all the other projects started it is going to the DOGS? It is if it doesn't get support—and soon?

The Community Room needs a committee that will work for the interest of the town—its children and its future. It needs a new heating plant, a kitchen and many other things too numerous to mention, but most of all it needs money to carry on. If we had the facilities we could put on suppers—we could run a series of card parties—if we had the tables and cards and the prizes.

The phrase "Charity Begins at Home" certainly applies here.

As a starter, to find out whether or not you are interested in its future, we shall launch a tag day.

From then on you shall be informed weekly of what will be done and how it will be accomplished. Your co-operation is essential.

Any suggestions you make will be given careful attention and your help appreciated.

Wake up, Bethel. Leave the in the background, and work as a unit for the betterment of the Community Room.

A week from Saturday, (Oct. 23) will be Tag Day.

Mabel O'Brien, Sec.-Treas. for Committee, Tel. 17-12

Following a brief honeymoon the couple will reside in Bethel where Mr. Bryant is employed by his father. The bride's traveling ensemble was a maroon suit with black accessories and corsage of baby mums.

Several out of town guests attended the wedding.

Z DO NOT LOB THE BALL

CENTRAL ALLEYS are now open with completely refinished surfaces to please the returning pastimers. There are indications of increasing interest in this cooler weather sport and present plans include the use of the alleys by ladies on Tuesday evenings of each week. The alleys are open with pinballs in attendance Monday through Friday from 6 to 12 each night and on Saturdays from 1 o'clock until midnight.

Cars for Everybody

Most people thought Henry Ford's ideas about putting wheels under every Americans were just a lot of bunko. They just couldn't see how anything like that could be done. Some of Ford's early partners failed to grasp the idea, for they thought of automobiles as belonging to the rich. Ford's idea was too "bare-brained" for them. They couldn't understand how anybody could possibly make a living selling cars to "poor" people.

But Henry Ford had the grace of an idea and the courage to see it through. America was a nation that encouraged such things. With an original investment of $29,000, he put the nation literally on wheels. Mass production was brought into its own, and costs came down. Ford wanted to make only a small profit on each car, and this sold millions of them. Competitors had to offer good values, too.

Jobs and Payrolls

Tin Lizzie and her imitators called for roads. Dozens of new industries came into being, in the building of roads. Our highways would circle the globe 41 times. Lizzie and the others had a thirst for gasoline. America's petroleum industry grew enormously. Filling stations had to quench that thirst. All these things made jobs. America became an industrial power, with this Ford-inspired motive power all the while adding to her efficiency and new products.

This new mass production created great industrial empires: mines for coal and iron, rubber plantations, timberlands and saw mills, hydroelectric works, chemicals, glass, textiles. The result was more and more jobs, bigger and bigger payrolls, more and more goods and products that people wanted. Then, with our cars we became a touring nation. All our states became neighbors. We came to know the face of America, the beautiful.

Plowed-Back Earnings

Out of that $29,000 and his idea, Ford developed a great industrial empire, with factories and assembly plants and branch offices. Yet, aside from the factories and the equipment that he owned, Henry Ford probably never owned more than 2 per cent of the wealth that he created. He was called a billionaire, but he counted his resources in buildings and machinery, not in money.

Ford was free to plow back his earnings into an industrial empire that created jobs and produced wealth, mostly for other people. There were no personal income taxes to penalize individual effort. In fact, corporation taxes did not begin until Ford's industry was five years old, and then the tax was only 1 per cent. It did not exceed 12 per cent any year until 1932. Today, taxes are a multi-million dollar item on many company's books.

Any More Henry Fords?

Demands from the tax collector have made impossible a contribution like Ford's from any individual American in this generation. Present tax laws, and mushrooming growth of a revenue-taking government, make it almost certain that there will not be another Henry Ford, or anyone like him. Are we thus penalizing the future of America? Who knows what need may arise for the genius of a Ford, in years to come?

Our nation must never lose its inventive genius. This genius can best thrive in a climate of complete economic freedom. The spirit of industrial venture that Ford typified must be kept alive, for the good of America. Ford's contribution brought many blessings to all of us. We should not make it impossible, through heavy taxation, for any future Henry Ford to develop in America.

HOW STAMMERING WAS OVERCOME

HERE'S a story of stammering. Most doctors today are connecting stammering and stuttering with a fear complex, and this story would seem to bear them out.

Freeman H. Hubbard, of Kingston, N. Y., says that for more than twelve years his big worry was a bad case of stammering. It started with a minor hesitation before he was 2 years old, and gradually became more distressing. Sometimes when he wanted to ask for a street car transfer he had to write the word "transfer" and show it to the conductor. He became so self-conscious about his handicap that he would walk miles to see someone rather than attempt a telephone call.

He got excellent marks at school, but, due to his speech trouble, he was flunked again and again, and it required six years for him to complete a four-year course.

This was a dreadful state of affairs. The doctors said his vocal organs were perfectly normal but he had gradually lost control over them from misuse. His family regarded his case as hopeless; they pitied him, apologized for him, and some of them even shunned going out with him. Did he suffer? Of course, he did, so much that he began avoiding all social gatherings.

Then there came a turn. An uncle gave him a copy of "Self Reliance" by Ralph Waldo Emerson. In it, he read: "What I must do is all that concerns me, not what people think!" All of a sudden, he realized that it was Fear that was holding him down. He had allowed this common enemy of mankind to dominate his life, to create in him a feeling of inferiority.

Since sheer necessity for a silent occupation had led him to develop a better-than-average facility in writing, he boldly decided to become a newspaper reporter. This would force him to meet and talk with people. Well, that was just about the hardest job he could have picked, but he had tried practically everything else—and failed.

He wrote to The National Underwriter, a large Chicago insurance weekly. He was hired sight unseen!

He says "Nothing I can remember was ever so painful as my first interviews. I wished a trapdoor would open and let me down. I am certain that it was painful to my interviewees, too, but almost without exception they showed me great kindness, and by and by interviewing ceased to be an ordeal. My speech became more fluent and today, thank God, I can deliver public speeches without the slightest hesitation."

Yes, just one more instance of how Fear might have thoroughly wrecked a man's life.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

WHILE the much-heralded controversy between Oscar W. Ewing, federal security administrator, and John W. Studebaker, resigned commissioner of education, before the Senate investigating committee, came to naught, agitation was again started in behalf of the plan to make the department of education a separate and independent agency.

Studebaker practically apologized for his remarks charging that Ewing hampered his efforts to teach school children about the evils of communism.

"It was not my purpose to cast any doubt upon the loyalty of Administrator Ewing or any of his associates," Studebaker said. And Ewing said his objection was based upon his opinion that exposing of communism should be left to the state department and the FBI and was not within the province of the department of education.

Dr. Studebaker, however, raised again the question of taking his department out of the federal security administration and making of it an independent governmental agency operated by a board.

"I'd like to see the authority in the office of education stem not from any one in partisan politics, but from a board . . . Immediately the national education association issued a long statement by its executive secretary urging such action and the appointment of a professionally qualified commissioner of education, responsible to the board for the conduct of his office.

NRA pointed out that it was the national mouthpiece for 48 states and territorial teachers' associations and 2,465 local teachers' organizations with 400,000 direct voluntary members, and enrolls a total of more than 40,000 teachers in all classes of affiliated membership representing every community in the United States.

For the past two years at its annual meeting NRA has adopted such a resolution calling for an independent educational agency. Said the NRA—

"We agency exists at the federal level whose primary function is to take administrative account of powerful social demands for national action in education, and of the need for positive but properly limited and coordinated federal participation in education."

NEA suggests that the board consist of lay members, and this fact, namely "that the board would be composed mainly of laymen of broad vision and public spirit rather than paid federal officials, would be a good argument" administrative control of the schools in the various states.

Also urging federal aid for the state schools, the NEA pointed out that many millions of dollars have been voted on a piecemeal basis to the nation's schools from time to time.

"The mistake is sometimes made of assuming that financial aid is synonymous with control of program and administration. This is not the case. The presence or absence of control as a by-product of financing depends upon the terms of the legislation. Control may be written into a federal aid bill or it may be excluded. This depends upon the desires of the members of congress."

THE STATES HAVE BEEN NOTIFIED of their share of the $60 million dollars authorized by the federal-aid highway act of 1944 for fiscal 1946. The act authorizes distribution of that amount both in 1946 and in 1951. Of the $60 million dollars to be distributed, allocations start with $30,986,757 for 1946 in New York, and range down to $1,868,816 in Delaware.

ALTHOUGH THE 80TH CONGRESS by-passed a national health law it did pass four laws pertaining to health . . . the world health organization, and authorizing an annual appropriation of $1,000,000 for the U. S. share of the expense, the national heart act providing for a program of research and training relating to cardiovascular diseases, establishing the National Heart Institute and authorizing grants-in-aid to states for community heart disease control programs and appropriating $600,000; the dental research act establishing a National Institute of Dental Research within the public health service and authorizing PHS to conduct dental research and make grants-in-aid for such research; the water pollution control act which calls for foundations of a nationwide program for prevention and control of pollution in interstate waters.

"Getting Nowhere Fast"

THOSE WALL STREET VILLAINS!

EVERY few—least of all our ballyhoo type of politician—knows what is meant by "Wall Street" any more. Too many soap-box artists have manhandled this overworked moniker.

In the early days of Manhattan there was a wall which ran east and west across the island, and which was erected as a fortification. Later, when the wall came down, the street which took its place was called "Wall Street."

"Industry" and "Business" are often confused in the minds of some who don't follow such things very closely. In the fewest possible words, "Industry" might be called the manufacturing branch of our economy; "business" the banking branch. The two are interdependent. The bankers raise the money with which to build the factories. Their representatives sit on the boards of directors to serve the interests of their clients whose money is involved. Sometimes some of these men—who are often human after all—get over-enthusiastic and try to expand those interests beyond a limit considered beneficial to the general economy.

This system of balance has been so successful that, today, our comparatively small fraction of humanity is supporting most of the civilized world and, at the same time, living in a "lap of luxury" hitherto unknown on such a colossal scale.

Now, of course, if we had achieved the benefits of "business"; or, as Messrs Truman and Wallace call it—with a few picturesque adjectives—"Wall Street," we wouldn't have developed all those "goliaths of privilege" who are destroying our country, making war on innocent Russia; starving the poor and eating little children. We would be one big, happy, purely agricultural family, run by selfless, vote-depicting, economic experts like President Truman, or maybe book taught farmer Wallace and milk-mother Taylor. BUT WE WOULD STILL BE DEPENDENT UPON OTHER NATIONS FOR OUR MANUFACTURED GOODS, AS WE WERE BEFORE THE REVOLUTION.

Personally we favor continuance of the American WAY—attachment to business; and of the presidential candidates, Governor Dewey seems to this registered voter more likely to succeed.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Matters That Affect the Disney Pals, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual—National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

There is a science called semantics, which has to do with the meaning of words and phrases. An apparently plain statement may mean one thing to one man—and a quite different thing to another. The purpose of semantics, which hasn't made much headway in the world, is to get rid of this confusion, and give words an absolute precision.

This illustrates one of the difficulties which has helped to produce the current crisis between Russia on the one hand and the Western allies on the other. American and British diplomats have met with Molotov, Stalin, and other top Soviet leaders, and have apparently arrived at agreements. Then, a few days or a few weeks later, it appears that the Russians put an entirely different interpretation on what was said and written. That happened at Yalta, where, apparently, President Roosevelt came away with an amazingly different idea as to what had been agreed upon than that held by Premier Stalin. The same words were used on both sides—but the meanings read into them varied enormously.

In the Moscow conferences over the Berlin blockade, the Western representatives thought they had made progress. Our ambassador, General Smith, had little to say for publication, but newsmen reported him cheerful and optimistic after his meetings with Stalin. It is generally believed he was sure that the Berlin blockade was about to be lifted. We had made a number of concessions to achieve that end, of which the most important was an agreement to use Russian currency, under four-power control, in the area.

But subsequent Russian actions immediately dissipated our hopes. Regardless of what Stalin said to Ambassador Smith or what Ambassador Smith thought Stalin meant—the top-level Russian went right ahead with the blockade, and kept on trying to break up the air lift and isolate the city. And no one believes those Russian commanders did that without explicit instructions from Moscow.

One rather interesting theory as to why Stalin may have changed his mind is finding some currency now. He is supposed to have received reports that Henry Wallace, with his strong pro-Russian campaign, will get many millions of votes, become an important minority influence on policy, and so be a factor in forcing a change in our attitude which will lead to our withdrawal from Berlin. Certainly, none of the standard American polls indicate that there is an atom of truth in that theory. If they are right, the Wallace vote will be extremely small. And Governor Dewey isn't giving any ground to the Kremlin—he has gone out of his way to praise the American delegation abroad, and to say that the whole country is united behind it. However, it may be that the Russian newsmen and others who report on American activities are very careful to color their summaries so that the top men in Moscow will read what pleases them most.

All in all, the line taken by the Western group has been strengthened more than most of us may realize. There is directness of language that does not often characterize exchanges among the representatives of theoretically friendly powers. Secretary Marshall and Foreign Minister Bevin have minced no words in placing the blame for the world's unrest. And this attitude is not confined to the big countries. Paul-Henri Spaak of little Belgium, speaking before the United Nations' General Assembly, made one of the sharpest attacks on Soviet Foreign Policy and said, in addition, that Russia has organized a fifth column in every one of the 68 countries which are members of the U.N.

New services said, at the end of September, that the English people were reluctantly coming to fear, for the first time, that war was a possibility. Up to then, they had felt that the situation was somewhat exaggerated, would be solved in one fashion or another, and that no power would be so insane as to plunge the world into another holocaust. The change in sentiment was undoubtedly caused by the British government's announcement that demobilization would be slowed, that the armed services would be built up, and that civilian defense activities would be immediately accelerated. Too, top British officials, in the Foreign Office and elsewhere, have demonstrated an increasing pessimism.

Yet, in this country the feeling in informed quarters still runs against an inevitable war. There will be many more incidents, the experts think, and the talk will get increasingly acrimonious. Yet they know that the U.S. will not pre-empt a shooting war, and they cannot bring themselves to believe that Russia is in a position to fight one. She is carrying on a tough and extremely intensive plan for building up her military strength and her industrial potential, but it is a long way from completion. Her production of essential materials, notably steel, is so far below ours as to make comparison nearly impossible. And our scientists, almost to a man, are sure that she does not yet have atomic weapons in anything resembling a useable form—and some say hopefully that it may be many years before she has them.

In any event, once the election is over, we will probably get still tougher in our dealings with Russia. And look for a big increase in military expenditures, plus a step-up in the draft, at about the same time.

MRS. GEORGE B. FARNSWORTH

Mrs Ruth Suphene Farnsworth, widow of Dr. George B. Farnsworth, died Monday at her home in Damariscotta after six weeks illness.

Born in Valatie, N. Y., 69 years ago, she was the daughter of the Rev and Mrs Frederick Suphene. She moved with her parents to Cleveland, O., when she was seven years old and attended Miss Millerberger's School at Cleveland and Miss Dana's School at Morristown, N. J.

In 1901 she was married to Dudley Baldwin Wick, who died a year later. Several years afterward she married Dr. Farnsworth, whose death occurred last year. Since 1938 they had been summer residents of Damariscotta and Christians Cove, and lived in Florida each winter.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Vollmer W. Fries, Cleveland, and Mrs. Neal W. Dale, Scarsdale, N. Y.; three grandchildren; and two sisters, Mrs. Joseph G. Wild, Cleveland, and Mrs. Rockwood Bullard, St. Clair, Mich.

Funeral services are held at the South Bristol church this Thursday afternoon and burial is in the family lot there.

WESTERN MAINE FIREMEN MEET AT HIRAM

The third meeting of the Western Maine Firemen's Association was held in the Grange Hall at Hiram Monday evening. The progress of the organization's expansion was noticeable with an attendance of 71 firemen representing the greater part of the Western Maine area from Gilead to Hiram.

The Western Maine Firemen's Association is definitely growing to proportions where it can, at any time from now on, be of invaluable assistance to its member towns. It has become an organization of capable, trained men, who know where all equipment and personnel are located in the shortest possible time, and whose value to this section of Maine is becoming greater with every meeting.

The speaker of the evening was W. J. Jen S. G. Hile of South Paris, who gave as his subject, "A Good Supervisor." The talk was most inspiring, particularly to firemen whose duties would be under the most trying conditions, namely, woods fires. Warden Hile stated that the small fire fighting forest tools that are cached at Laconia, N. H., would be available to the towns in this area. The Lacoona cache is an extensive one and the Western Maine area is fortunate to have the backing of these warden and the State.

The Bethel department suggested that all towns list among their spare equipment their airports and air mail planes available in time of disaster. Bethel itself has a good airport and three small planes. The suggestion was considered a very good one and was adopted.

Movies were shown by the Association's projectionist, Gustav Helm, followed by the usual lunch. Hiram did a wonderful job of entertaining such a large group. Brownfield invited the Association to meet with them on Friday, Nov. 12.

PORTLAND HIGH HARRIERS AT GOULD WEDNESDAY

The Portland High School cross country team will run at Bethel next Wednesday. The meet is scheduled to start at 3:30 from in front of the Academy field house. Coach Fossell's runners made a grand start when they trimmed the Bates Frosh. Last year the local team finished the season undefeated.

BETHEL TO FEATURE "STORK BOOTH" AT RUMFORD FAIR

A "Stork Booth" will feature Bethel participation in the annual fair for the benefit of the Rumford Community Hospital. This fair, an all day event, will be held at the Rumford Armory, on Thursday, November 4.

Clothing and accessories for the younger from birth up to and including the toddling stage will be on exhibition and sale throughout the day. The committee members are making every effort to present an attractive and well stocked booth and are enthusiastic over progress made to date.

Mundt Post and Auxiliary have earmarked proceeds from their beano party on Thursday, October 21, for the committee, and funds already in the treasury as a result of the successful card party on Tuesday evening assure a substantial contribution by the Bethel contingent.

This committee is headed by Mrs. Murray Thurston and includes Mrs. Elwood F. Ireland, Mrs. Gayle Foster, Mrs. Herbert Rowe, Mrs. Richard Young, Mrs. Addison Saunders, Mrs. Norris Brown, Mrs. Henry Hastings, Mrs. Walter Jodrey, Mrs. Willard Boynton, Mrs. John Matheson, Mrs. John P. Howe, Mrs. Paul Thurston, and Mrs. G. L. Thurston.

RUNNELS SHOP MOVED

The welding and machine shop business of the Runnels Machine Co. was moved the first of the week from their High Street location (the former C. L. Davis barn) to a newly built large building of cement block construction at West Bethel. New machinery has been added to the plant and a larger crew is employed in the new shop.

WALTER TONG, MISSIONARY, HERE SUNDAY

Trained and consecrated youth are called as never before to help build understanding and brotherhood through the Christian Church," says Walter C. Tong, Candidate Secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, Boston, who will speak here Sunday at the West Parish Church, during the morning worship.

Mr. Tong, who carries the important job of recruiting for the American Board young men and women for Christian service overseas, has himself been an active missionary. In 1931 Mr. Tong was recruited and sent by the American Board to serve in the Philippines Islands. There he worked with pagan tribes in the interior of Mindanao and aided groups of pioneering Filipinos who were colonizing parts of Mindanao.

When the war came to the Philippines in 1942, Walter Tong was in Davao, Mindanao, but his wife and three children were on the island of Luzon. For over two years the family was separated by internment; eventually they were released by American troops.

On Sunday evening at six-thirty Mr. Tong will give a report of his mission to the Philippines and will show pictures of his work among the islands. The public is cordially invited to come and hear the Tong story.

POULTRY MEETINGS NEXT TUESDAY-WEDNESDAY

Extension Poultry Specialist, Frank D. Reed, will hold poultry meetings in Oxford County, October 19 and 20.

Mr. Reed will show a sound film on Newcastle and will give recommendations for the control of this disease in Maine, as well as discussing new management ideas.

The meetings are scheduled for 1:30 p.m., October 19, at the East Bethel Grange Hall; 7:45 p.m., October 19, at the South Paris Farm Bureau Office, and 1:30 p.m., October 20, at the Denmark Community House.

All poultrymen are invited to attend one of these meetings.

day together with the time of the instructors.

Third: Gould provides an extra teacher in the ninth grade to bring the boys and girls in that class up to the standard which we feel is necessary for success in the last three years. This is done by requiring English and allied subjects two periods a day throughout the first year instead of the usual one period a day.

Fourth: In the face of the needs and demands of three specialized courses, Home Economics, Manual Arts, and Commercial, Gould continues to maintain high standards in its College Preparatory section as is attested by the records its graduates have made in nearly every college in the East. This can be done only by attracting and holding good, experienced teachers and then demanding hard work from the pupils.

Fifth: Gould believes there is much to be gained by being a SMALL school where teachers and pupils are in close contact and can cooperate—such small schools are expensive when they offer the diversification which is found here.

The other factor which places a considerable responsibility upon the school is the very fact that Gould is doing two quite distinct types of jobs with two quite distinct groups of students.

It is becoming alarmingly evident throughout Maine that, as the number of high school pupils has grown in recent years, there has been an increasing number who cannot do the old traditional type of secondary school work.

The Academy is just beginning to note this problem which has brought a serious situation into many of the small schools of the state. These high schools have had to meet the demands of this group and in so doing have sacrificed in many cases their college preparatory courses.

Gould does not plan to do this and to this end is making an extra effort to improve its college preparatory offerings and at the same time attempts to meet these newer needs wherever possible. It is a fact that we cannot meet all the needs of some of the boys and girls because they do not give us their cooperation. For that group, there is not much encouragement.

This very situation, however, brings into the spotlight one of the primary functions of this school's boarding department. It is a place where boys and girls (mostly from Maine) can come and receive good preparation for college or other specialized training that will properly fit them for schools of a post-secondary nature.

These facts are cited to give the citizens of Bethel a little clearer picture of the school's problems both financial and educational. Any parent or citizen wishing to learn more detailed information concerning their child or has any questions about the school are urged to come to the headmaster's office or visit the school at your convenience. You are very welcome.

The Parent Teacher Association will meet at the Grammar School building on Tuesday, Oct. 19, at 8 p.m. Everett Groat of the Maine Development Commission will be guest speaker. Hostesses are Emily Saunders, Marguerite Sumner, Ruth Kiltredge and Esther Brown.

May you now be in the CITIZEN.

Speakers at a meeting Friday evening at Denmark for Selectmen and Town Fire Wardens will be Forest Commissioner Austin H. Wilkins, and State Forest Warden Carleton Merrill of Lovell. The meeting, which will be open at 7:30 in the Community House, will be attended by John Weston and Robert Willett of the Western Maine Fire Association committee, county legislators, and all interested citizens. Topics to be taken up will be a forest service plan for fire protection and final organization for towns in the western Maine area.

MINERAL AND GEM GROUP TO VISIT GLINES MINE

This Sunday the Oxford County Mineral and Gem Association will visit the site of the old "Glines Mine" in Milton. This mine was once worked for gold. The group will meet at the beginning of the Concord Pond road on Route 120 at 9:00 a. m. EST.

At the last meeting the members were treated to cedar by Bob Dailey of North Newry. The next meeting will be November 1, 7:30, at the home of Dana Putnam, Rumford Corner. Dorothy Putnam, Secretary.

GOULD THINCLADS TRIM BATES FROSH, 15-45

Coach Fossett's cross country team came through with a grand slams victory over the Bates Froshmen as the first six Gould men finished hand-in-hand ahead of the nearest Bates runner. The first six Academy runners were Chudbourne, Hussey, Hertell, Stinchfield, Kendall and Hickcox, giving Gould a perfect score of 15-45.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The American Legion Auxiliary met at the Legion Home Tuesday evening. Mrs Raymond Dexter, Mrs Dan Forbes and Mrs Herbert Kiltredge were appointed to be in charge of the beano parties Oct. 14 and 21. Mrs Kiltredge was installed as second vice-president. It was voted to send money to the Department for Child Welfare, Rehabilitation and for poppies. It was also voted to give the proceeds of the beano party on Oct. 21 to the Bethel booth fund for the Rumford Hospital Fair. It was voted to let the Scouts and Brownies use the Legion Home for their meetings. The next meeting will be held at the Legion Home on Oct. 26.

SAFETY ON THE RAILROADS

As everyone knows, the railroads have long had an enviable record as one of the safest forms of transportation ever devised. And just how fine that record has become is detailed in a report, made by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Association of American Railroads.

Last year fewer people lost their lives in railroad accidents than in any of the 49 prior years covered by Commission statistics. The number of fatalities was 42 per cent under 1937, 62 per cent under 1917, and 64 per cent less than in 1907. And this progress was made, as The New York Times points out, in the face of the fact that the volume of service performed is much greater than in the past.

The Times goes on to give a graphic picture of just how safe the railroads are. Last year their passenger service was equivalent to moving every man, woman and child in the country 319 miles—yet there were only 66 fatalities. As the Times puts it, "An individual traveling by rail at 50 miles an hour, 24 hours a day, would require 1,600,000 years before he could expect to be killed." It would be a timid soul indeed who would worry when the odds are so enormous in his favor!

The railroads' achievement in the field of safety, like their achievements in every other field of operation, didn't happen by chance. It came about through constant improvement of equipment through the most careful training of personnel and by hard work and watchfulness day in and day out over the years.

The Shopping Tour

A Short-Short Story
By Daniel J. Lindsay

"WAKE UP, darling," Betty Williams nudged her husband. "Muts!" He rolled up on one elbow and cocked an eye at her. "Is it time to go to work already?"

He sat around under the bed for his slippers. "You don't go to work today, dear."

"Well now that's nice." He turned his face to the wall again. "Why not?"

"The boss gave you a day off."

"Wait now." She eyed his grinning face with alarm. "What are we going to do?"

"How sweet of him." He turned back to her, grief written all over his face. "Then why am I getting up at the crack of dawn?"

"Because, my fine feathered dead duck," she grinned at him, "you are going shopping with me."

"I am!" He looked stunned. "I must be crazy!"

"Oh huih" she agreed, reaching for his dressing gown.

"Aw, now, honey," he pleaded, "you go ahead and have a nice time. I'll just sit around here and make you."

"Oh, no, dear." She smiled sweetly. "You said this next day off you'd do whatever I wanted."

"I said within reason." He grabbed at this hopefully.

She stood up. "Twist and squirm, as you do not will, it's settled."

"Dear, I just..."

"Get up," she commanded. "Get in the bathroom and shave. I'll expect you at the breakfast table in 30 minutes."

"Slave driver!" he yelled at her retreating figure.

None the less 20 minutes later he was eating breakfast. Then amidst such purple protestations as have seldom come from the human ear he was bundled into the car. They finally arrived downtown and found a parking space.

"First," Betty informed him, "I am going to buy a new hat and you are going to help me pick it out."

"Look, sugar." He searched his mind frantically for an excuse.

"Come on, dear." She opened the car door and got out. "And please stop looking like a small boy getting his ears washed."

"Okay." He gave up and got out of the car. "Where do we start this raid?"

"Right there," she pointed to a millinery shop.

At the end of 45 minutes they emerged once more into the sunshine. He, with a hangdog look. She, triumphantly wearing a weird contraption faintly resembling a crashed motor car with survivors lying all around.

"Now to Perky's" she ordered.

"Sure." He unhooked his arm.

"You go ahead. I'll wait in the car."

"Oh, no, you don't. Next day off you can plan. Right now I need some buttons and stuff."

"But, honey." He acted terrified. "Not that department store."

"The same." She slipped her arm back in his. "They are having a sale on sheets. You can stand in line for them while I get the rest."

They passed under the marquee and edged into a solid wall of surging women.

"But, dear, you know how I hate to stand in line. Honest if I never stand in a —"

"Fudge," she cut him off. "You've been home a year now. You should be completely reconverted by this time."

She left him looking very dejected at the end of a long line of babbling women.

Half an hour later he returned. He was wearing a self-satisfied smirk and holding a large bundle.

"Harry!" She glared at him. "What on earth have you got there?"

"Sheets." He stuck out his chest. "But they were limited two to a customer."

"Maybe so, but I got six."

She smiled. "You didn't really?"

"Yup."

"You darling." She hugged his arm as they left the store and started down the street. "But how?"

He laughed. "I told her how I laid in a fox hole and dreamed about sleeping between sheets."

"But you were in the navy."

"Did she know that? Now have I earned the right to go home?"

"Not yet." She steered him into the five and ten cent store.

"Look, honey—" he drew back.

"I'll go get a beer and meet you back at the car."

"None. You'll stick to the bitter end and this is it."

"Then we go home?" He looked relieved as she nodded her head.

After much pushing and shoving she made her purchases and started back to the car. A peripatetic Harry dodged her footsteps.

"There now," she smiled up at him. "That wasn't so bad was it?"

He surveyed his scuffed and beaten shoes. His nerves were in the same condition. "Oh, well, next time I get a day off it'll be my turn."

"Wait now." She eyed his grinning face with alarm. "What are we going to do?"

"WE!" his grin widened, "are getting up at five o'clock and going hunting."

"Oh, but Harry." She looked dismayed. "You know how I hate to—"

All hope left her face as she listened to his mocking laughter.

WHO DETERMINES THE PRICE OF MEAT?

Writing in the Baltimore Sun, C P Ives presented a few facts on the meat situation which deserve circulation.

First of all, Mr Ives disposed of the theory that high meat prices are the result of an ominous combination to exploit the consumer. He says: "Meat prices are fixed by multi-unit wide-open market competition. There are about 6,000,000 farms in this country on any one of which you can encounter a few head of livestock grown for market."

"Before the war there were around 300 slaughtering plants in the country in the Federally inspected group alone. During and since the war the number has boomed to around 465. Monopoly as the major cause of high meat prices? Don't be silly."

Going on, Mr Ives touched on the extremely important development which is at the root of the high cost of meat—and many another commodity as well. The earnings in late years of people in low and middle income groups have gone up faster and farther than those in the high income group. Mr Ives put the result in these words, "The high income people are relatively few in number and have always had plenty of meat. Their increased income added relatively little to the meat demand."

"The totally unprecedented pressure that has boosted average meat consumption from 126 pounds before the war to 155.2 pounds last year, comes mostly from the very numerous low-income groups whose 36 per cent increase in buying power has enabled them to demand meat at rates quite beyond their pre-war dietary practices."

What all this adds up to is that the answer to the meat problem lies largely in greater production of livestock. It certainly doesn't lie in quick remedies, such as price control, which would discourage production and boom the black market.

Successful Parenthood

MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

DON'T look now, but there is a young child on your doorstep—and on mine too. It will be three years old on October 24, and it needs the help of all of us.

Does that sound like a silly ride? Well, actually it's a serious matter. The infant is the United Nations, and there's no question it needs all the backing we can give.

United Nations Week, being celebrated this month, will focus the attention of our boys and girls on the young world organization. Schools, youth clubs, church groups, and the like are all putting a lot of emphasis on the U. N. in October. Our youngsters are bound to be talking about U. N. at home. Which gives us a fine opportunity to help them understand what it's all about.

Of course the United Nations has much more to it than the General Assembly and the Security Council that are in the headlines so often. There's the International Court of Justice, and the Trusteeship Council. There's the Economic and Social Council. And there are special commissions on such things as the status of women, human rights, public health and so on. All of them are composed of intelligent, capable people who are working quietly to raise living standards, improve the health and welfare of ordinary people and thus remove the deepest causes of war. The United Nations is not just a confused center of squabbles and voices. The hopes and prayers of all humanity are focused there—and will continue to be, if we support it.

"And here is where we come in, both as parents, and as citizens of the U. S. A. Now? By thinking U. N. by reading U. N., by talking U. N. and—last but not least—by living U. N."

The purpose of the U. N. are set forth in the charter that our American representatives helped to write. The key phrase is this: "Promoting and encouraging respect for human rights . . ." That means protecting men and women of every country, creed and race against discrimination and oppression, as the new International Bill of Human Rights is designed to do. It means outlawing racial, religious and political persecution and bringing basic freedom to all people. We can live U. N. right here, in our own hometowns. Just as a pebble thrown into a pool spreads ripples, so our attitudes toward our fellow Americans can have a wider influence. The force of our example will spread to other places. It happened with the vote for women. It can happen with friendly good fellowship and teamwork among all races and faiths.

The United Nations is young. But no matter how competent the diplomats who are nursing it along, it depends in the long run on the guidance and support of its real parents—the plain people of this country and all the 80 per cent of the world's people who are members. That is the thought we can leave with our children during this United Nations Week.

Law in the Bible.

Lesson for October 17: Deut. 6:

10-25; Leviticus 10:9-14, 17, 18.

Memory Selection: Matthew 22:

17-19.

The Bible is a book of law that presents throughout the right stand and of life. But within it are sections devoted exclusively to certain laws to govern men.The present lesson begins with the purpose of law. It is shown by the deliverance from Egyptian bondage and the settlement in the land of promises that the purpose of God's law is to bring people to the highest good.The latter half of the lesson text commands generosity in the man of property. He must leave the corners of his field and the fallen fruit of his vineyards for the gleaning of the poor.

Also, honesty is required in all dealing—theft, dealing falsely, and lying are roundly condemned. There must be no oppression of others, and the wages of hired servants must be paid at the close of day. The deaf must not be cursed and a stumbling block must not be put in the way of law be extended to include all the cases in which advantage might be

The Way We See It

by Ruth Carver Ames
Shell Distributor

We're not much for blowing our own horn. But with a day like this—October 14—set aside for Oil Progress Day, I guess you'll understand why we'd like to tell you a few things about our business.

We keep mighty busy supplying fuel oil to you and your neighbors. Take last year, for example. People in this area used plenty of fuel oil to keep their homes comfortable. And we tried hard to deliver oil when and where you wanted it.

For our company—along with 34,000 other individual oil companies—knows how important oil products are to your comfort. And even though we compete with each other for your business, our objective is the same—to supply you with more and more of the oil products you need.

We're proud to be one of these independent companies that are trying to serve you better. Right now, you're being supplied with more oil products than ever before in history . . . almost 250 million gallons daily. . . . That's more oil than was used during the war!

The reason such large amounts of fuels and lubricants are being delivered is that we're using more oil products than we ever did. We have more cars, more trucks and busses. More Diesel trains, farm machines and factories. Not to mention some 312 million oil burners that require huge amounts of fuel oil.

We just thought you'd like to know a few things about our business on Oil Progress Day. As for what's ahead . . . we'll continue to supply you with high-quality oil products and lots of friendly service. For with competition the way it is in the oil business, we know that's the way to win and hold your business.

This year we'll deliver oil products to you in greater quantities than last year. And we hope you'll help us meet the oil demand by using the oil products you receive as efficiently as possible.

ELEANOR GORDON GUILD HOLDS INSTALLATION

The Eleanor Gordon Guild met Oct. 13 at the Community Room to hold installation of officers. Mrs S S Greenleaf was the installing officer. The officers were accepted into office wearing gowns during a candlelight service.

The officers installed were: president, Evelyn Roberts; vice-president, Althea Brown; secretary, Vera Gallant; treasurer, Pauline Davis; sales manager, Lou Bean. Mrs Greenleaf and last year's president, Betty Blake, were presented corsages.

The girls were asked to donate articles for the Rumford Community Hospital fair.

Pauline Davis was chosen as chairman of the candy table at the Methodist Church Fair Nov. 18.

Vera Gallant and Mary Angevine are to help. Sylvia Luxton, Beatrice Lowell, Hilda Brown and Betty Blake volunteered to help on the Guild's sandwich bar at the Fair.

Gwendolyn Currier will assist Mrs Clayton Fossett on the wreath table. Lou Bean and Virginia Mundt will have the card table.

Phyllis Dock, Althea Brown and Frances Saunders are on the committee to plan extra activities for the Guild.

It was decided to form a planning committee to plan future meetings so that each girl will have her share of the meetings. Dot Christie, Vera Gallant and Peggy Blake are on this committee.

POLIO VIRUS . . . Dr. Edwards D. F. Derobertis (left) and Dr. Francis O Schmidt, of Cambridge and Belmont, Mass., respectively, showed pictures of tiny dots that may be polio virus moving inside a nerve, to the Microscope Society of America at Toronto. Scientists attending the meetings said that if these dots are actually the virus, there is reason for rejoicing.

tee. Virginia Keniston and Virginia Mundt are on the new sunshine committee.

The next meeting will be a Holloween Party at Virginia Mundt's home. Pauline Davis and Frances Saunders are to help entertain. It will be a "back-side-to-party" where each girl wears clothing back-side to. There will be a fine for not entering into the spirit of the evening.
